Flank Attack May Smash Labor Laws

Danzig Discounts Rumor Nazis Are Moving on Baltic

Police Reinforced "Only as Necessary to Provide Security"

A NEW BRITISH BID Suggests Baltic Area Be Included in Treaty With Russians

DANZIG—(P)—Foreign reports of the organization of a so-called "Free Corps" and the influx of Germans into Danzig were described in a rebuttal by official Danzig sources Thursday as an "alarming of the public which is by no means warranted."

An official Nazi organ in a statement Thursday vigorously denied reports abroad of intensive military preparations in the Danzig territory.

It admitted at the same time measures which it called legitimate had been taken to strengthen the Danzig police force "to such a degree that the population may go about its daily work with a sense of security."

New British Gesture

LONDON, Eng.—(P)—Britain was said by informed sources Thursday to have sent proposals to Moscow for inclusion of the Baltic states and Belgium, Holland and Switzerland in the proposed Anglo-French-Russian mutual assistance pact.

This proposal was said to have been the latest instructions which the British government dispatched to Sir William Seeds, British ambassador to Russia.

Sources close to the government discounted an article published in Moscow Thursday in the official organ of the Communist party saying that negotiations had run into a "blind alley."

Japan Still Firm

TOKYO, Japan.—(P)—Japan has accepted Britain's proposal that they seek a settlement of their Tientsin crisis at a Tokyo conference but Wednesday night there were important differences of view as to the parity of scope.

British spokesmen insisted that only local issues connected with the Japanese army's "feday" blockade of the British and French concessions at Tientsin would be considered. But Japanese, especially military leaders, said that demands for Britain's "cooperation" in Japan's program for a "new order in East Asia," especially its economic phases, would figure vitally in the negotiations.

Offer Treaty to Germany

LONDON—(P)—Great Britain has told Germany she is willing to negotiate a new naval limitations agreement, but has asked what assurances the Reich could give that such a pact would not be scrapped as was the 1935 agreement.

This was done in a note delivered to Berlin Tuesday night which also contained an answer to the German charge that Britain "must always be hostile to Germany" and that she is building "entirement" alliances against the Reich.

Britain's answer was that she could be hostile only "if Germany were to commit an act of aggression against another country," and that her recent policy was simply one of "assisting smaller nations to feel secure in the enjoyment of their independence."

Killer Is Shot to Death by a Posse

Ray Olson Slain for Murder of Two Wisconsin Special Officers

CABLE, Wis.—(P)—Ray Olson, fugitive killer of two special deputy sheriffs, was shot to death Tuesday while attempting to flee from four possesmen led by Constable Ernest Moore, of Cable.

The shooting occurred on Lake Naimakagon, 14 miles from Cable. Struck by four bullets, the killer, who had been hunted since June 17, toppled into the water from the boat from which he was attempting to row across the lake.

New Orleans Paper Exposes Use of LSU Truck at Henschman's House

NEW ORLEANS — All Louisiana these days is remembering a homely farmboy phrase Gov. Earl Long spoke a year ago. The scene was Sicily Island, Louisiana. Earl Long rose before a joint mass meeting, faced friends and enemies, and opened his speech with seven words now historic: "Now, I'm going to skin a skunk!"

Earl Long now sits in the governor's chair in Baton Rouge, with the great Maestri machine behind him, and all the power the law and party politics can place in a governor's hands in

Bailey Advances Bonding Program

Reports Progress in His Conversations With U. S. Officials

WASHINGTON—(P)—Gov. Carl E. Bailey had what he described as "satisfactory" conferences Wednesday with government finance officials regarding the proposed refunding of $140,000,000 of Arkansas highway bonds.

He discussed with officials of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Federal Reserve Board and the controller of the currency Arkansas' request for raising the highway bonds from a substandard to standard rating. He said he was "hopeful" and expected a decision Thursday.

Bailey said the improved rating would facilitate refunding of the bonds.

The governor later talked with Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation about participating in the refunding operations. He said this meeting also was "satisfactory."

WPA Art Project Given New Lease

Senate Approves Continuation of This Controversial Activity

WASHINGTON—(P)—The senate approved a continuation of the federal theater and other WPA art projects Wednesday night with a strict limitation of funds. At the urging of senator Wagner (Dem., N.Y.) it allowed $13,000,000 for the art projects as compared with approximately $25,000,000 spent upon them during the current fiscal year.

This action was taken as the chamber rapidly approached final action on the $1,735,000,000 relief appropriation bill.

It had approved an amendment requiring that the states contribute 25 per cent of the cost of all WPA projects within their areas, and rejected a proposal that $500,000,000 be appropriated for a new public works program.

Atlantic Clipper Lands Passengers

Reaches Azores, Then to Portugal, With First Pay Passengers

HORTA, Azores—(P)—The Dixie Clipper left Horta for Lisbon, Portugal, Thursday on the second leg of her flight inaugurating commercial passenger service across the Atlantic.

The Take-Off

PORT WASHINGTON, N. Y.—(P)—The first paying passengers ever to be flown by airplane across the Atlantic stepped aboard the big gray Dixie Clipper Wednesday and a minute later were off for Europe—scheduled to arrive at Horta, the Azores, by breakfast time Thursday. While 5,000 spectators waved, and harbor craft saluted with whistles, the $750,000 flying boat of Pan American Airways taxied smoothly over Manhasset bay—then upward and out, opening a new area in aviation.

With the ship's departure at 2:12 p. m. on a 450-mile flight, aviation's long-cherished dream of regular transatlantic passenger service by plane became a reality. Twenty-two passengers some of whom applied for passage eight years ago and a crew of 11 were aboard the 41-ton flying boat that started the schedule of twice-weekly Clipper flights to Europe.

Bare-Fisted Baccalaureates

Prominent Americans who are drafted to make college baccalaureate and commencement addresses year after year would find it interesting to dig those made in 1939.

A survey of newspaper accounts if at least 50 current dissertations leaves no doubt that the speakers no longer ramble on for hours (while perspiration flows beneath a thousand caps and gowns) about the great opportunity in life that is just outside the field house door.

Nor do they paint a dark picture of gloom and despair which challenges the metal of the stoutest hearted.

The 1939 style baccalaureate and commencement speaker takes off his gloves after the second paragraph and chooses to go the rest of the route with a little banter, hand-to-hand encounter with the realities of life, no punches pulled.

Of course, there are still a few old style orators who stress the importance of honesty, ambition, energy, willingness-to-work, industry, etc., etc., in the "great game which you are entering today." But just look at these excerpts
"If we are to avoid regimentation, we must exert active effort to order our own scheme of life."

"The question that remains to be answered in your time is: How far can legislation go and still register again for all the people."

"The present danger to democracy lies in the possibility that we ourselves will discredit the democratic system, or permit it to become atrophied through lack of use."

"The foundation on which these desirable structures (high standards of living) can be supported is an efficient and profitable production of things people need and are willing to pay for."

"An abandonment of co-ordinated thinking paves the way for fascism and revolution."

Yes, these are words spoken to 1939 college graduates by leaders in business, government and the church. Times do change, don't they?

The Family Doctor

By DR. MORRIS FISHER

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Figures Write Warning on "Fourth" Fireworks Accidents

In 1938, according to statistics especially assembled by the American Medical Association, there were 18 deaths due to celebration of Fourth of July with fireworks and other explosives, and seven additional deaths indirectly
due to the same causes.

Eight little girls were burned to death last year, three of them in South Bend, Ind. Five boys and men died as a result of stuffing lead pipes with firecrackers and gunpowder.

Only two cases of lockjaw were reported in 1938, and one in 1937, resulting from fireworks, so that this is not as great a menace as it was in a previous generation, but lockjaw still is a threat after every injury. Lockjaw antitoxin should be administered by the doctor when he treats the wound.

In 1938, nearly three times as many people lost the sight of one or both eyes or suffered destruction of vision as in 1937. In 1938 there were twice as many amputations of a limb as in 1937. In 1938 the total number of injuries from Fourth of July fireworks was 7933 as compared with 7205 in 1937.

These figures do not take into consideration the injuries treated in hospitals which failed to report or injuries treated by doctors in their offices, so that probably the number is far greater.

There are now in American schools for the blind nearly 500 children who lost their eyesight from Fourth of July accidents. We pay too great a price for our celebration.

Fortunately more and more states are passing stringent state laws to control this hazard. The real burden and responsibility rest on the parents who must see to it that their children are protected.

It would be easier to scrap our liberties and put everything into the hands of an all-powerful state. But we are not cut out for that kind of system.—Attorney General Frank Murphy.

Labor has been notoriously poorly led in the United States.—President
Arthur Murphy, of St. Mary College,

Sleeping in Church O.K. If Sleepers Can Pay $5

HASTINGS, Eng.—(AP)—It costs $5 to sleep in church in this English seacoast town.

A woman started it by sending $5 "conscience money" to the Rev. C. C. Dobson, vicar of St. Mary-in-the-Castle, explaining that she had been sleeping in church every Sunday for years.

Whereupon, the vicar announced that anybody in his parish could sleep at the same terms and published in the parish magazine: "Next time you have a nap, send along a pound (5)." "Oh, about golf."

"Yes, You know. It's a game. You play it with..." "I know how to play it," said Ron stonily.

"Oh, you do? Your brother didn't seem to think so." "Ha!" A wrathful expression appeared upon Ron's face. "He said something about me, did he? What did he say?"

"Well, as far as I could gather he's planning to take you to the cleaners in a golf match."

"Did he say that? The louse." Roy's face lighted. "Why, that's the very word he used about you."

"You mean he had the unmitigated nerve to call me—ME—a louse?" Ron demanded.

Ron nodded. "Yes. Now I come to think of it, it was dirty louse." Ron paced the lawn. He seemed under the stress of some great emotion.

"I've got a mind," he said, at last, "to go back and bust him out in the eye."

"Oh, I wouldn't do that," said Roy. "You'd interfere with his practicing."

SERIAL STORY

PAR IS LOVE

BY EDWIN RUTT

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday, Roy and Ron went out on the way for the night, and he is bringing on his headway to win Barbara, she says with one of the twins.

CHAPTER VII
"HELLO, Mr. Herring," Barbara called. "We're going to town. Want to come?"

He looked at her, unconscious of the twin. "I'd like nothing better." "I don't know if you've met Ron Peyton," said Barbara, mindful of the social amenities. "This is Roy Herring, Ron."

"Glad to know you," said Mr. Peyton, extending a hand warm and moist like a fried fillet of sole. "How do you do," Roy grasped the sole and pressed it.

"You too amuse each other for a minute," said Barbara. "I've got to give Baskerville a message." She walked off toward the garage.

Roy regarded the fellow before him. No, he decided, it would be impossible to tell these twins apart from looking at their faces.

"I saw you talking to my brother this morning," said Ron, almost reprovingly. He spoke as if it pained him to have to refer to so gross an error against society.

"Why, yes," Roy said. "At least, I was talking to a fellow who looks something like you. In fact, enough like you to be you. It wasn't you was it?"

"No," said Ron with hauteur. "It was that snake Wilfrid."

"Oh, is he a snake? I didn't realize."

"He is," said Ron decisively. "He's worse. He's a viper. What were you talking to him about?"

"Oh, about golf."

"Yes, You know. It's a game. You play it with..." "I know how to play it," said Ron stonily.

"Oh, you do? Your brother didn't seem to think so."

"Ha!" A wrathful expression appeared upon Ron's face. "He said something about me, did he? What did he say?"

"Well, as far as I could gather he's planning to take you to the cleaners in a golf match."

"Did he say that? The louse." Roy's face lighted. "Why, that's the very word he used about you."

"You mean he had the unmitigated nerve to call me—ME—a louse?" Ron demanded.

Ron nodded. "Yes. Now I come to think of it, it was dirty louse." Ron paced the lawn. He seemed under the stress of some great emotion.

"I've got a mind," he said, at last, "to go back and bust him out in the eye."

"Oh, I wouldn't do that," said Roy. "You'd interfere with his practicing."

"Huh! The swine is practicing, is he?" "Yes. He told me that the way to win golf matches was to practice and go to bed early. We had quite a long talk. And I must say I agree with him. To be honest with you, Wilfrid looks good to me."

RON shot him a look from beneath beaming brows. "You think he can beat me?"

"Uh-huh," said Roy negligently. Ron seemed upset by the news. He resumed his pacing.

"What makes them so sure?" he asked, in a slightly distraught voice.

"Attitude," said Roy firmly. "They like the way Wilfrid's going about it. They go for his grim determination. And you can't blame them. Look here! Your brother Wilfrid spends his days perfecting his shots and his nights in sleeping. He's earned, he's determined. Now you, what do you do? You go gallivanting off with girls during the day and dance and carouse half the night. No, you can't blame the servants' quarters. The advance dope seems to favor your brother."

Ron stopped pacing and stood with his eyes on the ground. "Gee," he said slowly. "I never thought of that. I figured Wilfrid was just a dub like I am."

Roy shook his head. "Don't kid yourself. He's no dub and no dummy, either. He's a smart guy. In fact, he's taking golf lessons, too."

It was as if someone had suddenly stuck Ronald with a pin. He jumped a foot in the air. "Golf lessons? Wh-what-why-why? When? Where? Who from?"

"From me," said Roy meekly. Ronald executed a dance of pure wrath. "Well, of all the low-down, dirty, rotten, sneaking, un-sportsmanlike things I've ever heard of, that takes the cake. Did he bring you here to teach him?"

"Oh, no," said Roy. "I just dropped in to visit Baskerville."

Ronald was not interested in the whys and wherefores. He made no comment on this and got down to brass tacks.

"Is he paying you for it?" he demanded.

"Not a red cent. I'm doing it just for the fun of it."

Ronald made a decision. "Well," he said, "you've got to cut these lessons out at once."

"They haven't started yet," Roy informed him.

"Oh! Relief swept over Ron's face. "Well then, they can't start. It isn't fair. Not fair in any sense of the word."

"That's what I told your brother. He was very insistent. Said you'd have taken the same opportunity."

"The skunk. He lies in his teeth."

"So, of course, you can't blame me."

"No, no," said Ron quickly. "I'm not blaming you." He stood moodily for a minute. Then a crafty expression stole over his round face. Delighted with whatever was in his mind, he smote his palms together. "Hey, I've got a swell idea."

"Idea?" said Roy doubtfully. "Yes. Want to make a hundred bucks?"

Roy hesitated. "How?"

RONALD came closer, wearing the air of an arch conspirator. His voice sank to a whisper. "Well, I was thinking," he said, "that it would be okay for you to give Wilfrid lessons. Only—he paused and winked one eye suggestively—"you don't necessarily have to teach him the right things, do you?"

"I don't get you," said Roy. "Why don't you see?"

Ronald was palpably amazed at the obtuseness of this individual before him. "The thing to do is to give him the wrong dope. In other words, teach him to miss the ball instead of hitting it."

"But he already knows that," objected Roy.

Ron waved his hand. "It doesn't matter. Teach him to become highly proficient at missing the ball. If you do—well, there's a hundred bucks in it for you."

Roy looked at him, thinking how unwise it was to attempt to judge from appearances. Here was a magnificent estate, a place of green lawns, sunlit swimming pools, violet-eyed girls and flying golf balls. Certainly the casual observer would have been justified in concluding that here dwelt a plethora of innocence and guileless bliss. And yet, it was all the merest camouflage, scenery concealing dark currents of treachery and depravity.

"That would be a dirty trick on your brother," he said hesitantly. "Peanut butter," scoffed Ron. "Didn't he try to play one on me? He's got it coming to him."

"Poetic justice, eh?" "Something like that. Well, how about it? You can't laugh off a cool hundred."

"Sure I can," said Roy. "There's to be no money in this."

Ron's face fell. "Then you won't do it?"

"I didn't say I wouldn't," said Roy, sinking deeper into the mire. (To Be Continued.)

Glass Washer Is Installed by Cox

Soda Fountain at Cox's Has One of Latest Type Machines

According to R. L. Broach of Cox Drug Co., this store has just installed the latest development in modern glass washing equipment at its soda fountain. Mr. Broach explained that he installed this machine, known as the Liquid Roto Glass Washer, to assure his fountain patrons being served with glassware that is absolutely clean, safe and sanitary. The public is cordially invited to come in and see the Roto glass washer in operation.

"Washing glasses by ordinary methods, is a difficult job because they will usually remain on the glass a slight film which is built up of thin layers of lime, grease and other substances in the water and which hand washing does not readily remove."

Mr. Broach stated that when he first saw the Roto glass washer, he was so impressed with its efficient operation that he lost no time in installing it in his store. "Now," he said, "the vigorous scrubbing or abrasive action of the stiff bristle brushes of the Roto washer effectively cleans the glasses and removes glassware film." The cleansing brushes, which revolve at high speed, reach every surface of the glass, scrub it to a clear sparkling brilliance, and leave it perfectly clean, safe and sanitary.

The Roto Glass Washer was purchased from the Liquid Carbonic Corporation of Chicago who have been building soda fountains and other related equipment for fifty years. The Roto glass washer is their latest development.

Legs On Locomotive

NEW YORK—The locomotive with legs is getting a lot of laughs at the Court of Railways at the New York World's Fair. The driving mechanism consists of a pair of huge jointed iron legs designed to give the engine locomotion like a jack-rabbit. That was before anyone thought of hooking the legs to the wheels as driving rods.

Jew's Brains—and a Fire—Beat Nazi Money Rules

LONDON.—(AP)—A German Jew has found a new way of defeating the Nazi currency regulations—to the tune of $280,000.

A British lawyer called to Berlin to take details of British stock certificates, watched astounded as his client threw them on the fire.

After reaching England the refugee had the lawyer file a sworn statement as to the destruction of the certificates. Under British law this enabled him to obtain the necessary duplicates—at a cost of around $720.

Paul Harrison in Hollywood

Fisticuffs in Flickerville—"Kid" Russell Meets "Sluggo" Goddard in Main Event

HOLLYWOOD.—A fight that begins on a back porch and rages around a garden and through five rooms of a house is being staged by members of the star-spangled, feminine cast of "The Women." And the girls can take it. They also can kick it out.

The slaps and hair-pulling and shinning and kicking are, I can assure you, genuine. And they are not performed by doubles. When male combatants are in a fistie scene, the atmosphere usually is pretty grim. But "The Women" seem to be having the time of their lives, maybe because the opportunity is such a rare one.

It happens in Reno and begins with the discovery that Paulette Goddard, there for a divorce, is going to marry the man whom another of the women is divorcing. There's a hot exchange of words before Rosalind Russell yanks Miss Goddard (who looks very umphy in white shorts and red sweater) off her horse.

Rosalind Russell Routed

Then the slapping match begins and it's clear from the start that the cutie in ringside costume has the advantage. They wreck a table set for luncheon, and Miss Russell retreats into the house. They go from room to room, followed by Joan Fontaine, Norma Shearer and Mary Boland, who try to intervene and suffer for it.

It finally ends in a flurry of shinning and biting, after which the disheveled Miss Russell limps to get some iodine, grumbling that she'll probably develop hydrophobia.

This sequence is the last to be filmed, so that black eyes and sprains can't delay production. Also, possibly, so that any real enemies growing out of the battle wouldn't spoil the company's morale. But there have been none of those; in fact, the whole picture has gone off without the flares of temperament and jealousies that Hollywood expected.

Fanned Norma Shearer: "After I have a fight with Rosalind, we'll be bitter friends from then on."

Semi-Windup Bickford vs. Burns

There's very little faking in movie fights except that most of the hay-maker blows and spectacular falls are taken by stunt men. Jimmy Dundee, a star stuntman, says he'd rather turn over an automobile or fall off a 30-foot ladder than stage a fight. Burns and Charles Bickford put on such a realistic brawl that at the end, when Bickford downed Burns and was proceeding to a more artistic bit of mayhem, an excited extra jumped in from the sidelines and began punching the red-headed actor. It spoiled the take.

I mentioned the Jackie Cooper-Freddie Bartholomew match in "Bright Victory," and on the same lot George Raft and Victor Jory—a couple of lads who really can handle themselves—battered each other all over

It's the Time of Year When Desserts Can Be the Berries

By Mrs. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

Cherries, blackberries, blueberries are raspberries now are at hand to add their tender gaiety to our menus. Welcome them into your homes.

In buying cherries, remember that the come to maturity only on the tree. If the cherries in the box are still unripe, don't buy them. Unlike other fruit, they will not develop any further either in color or flavor once they have been picked. If a cherry has a fresh appearance, clear color and plumpness, it means that it was picked in maturity from the tree.

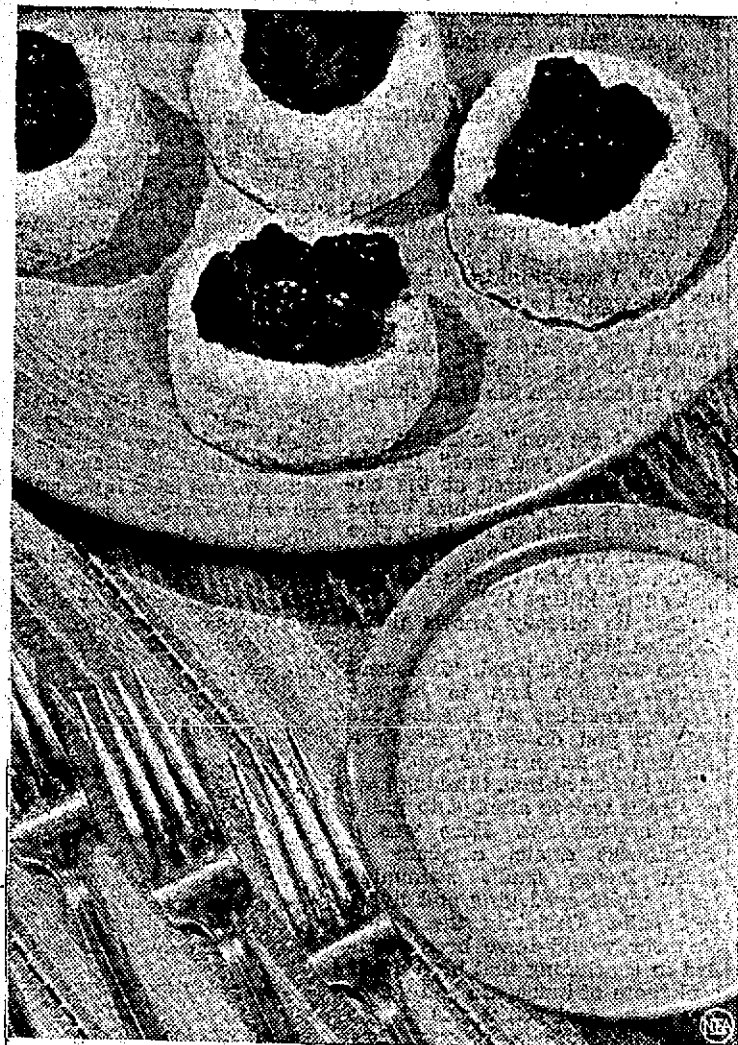

Raspberry Chiffon Pie
One envelope plain unflavored gelatin, 1-4 cup cold water, 3-4 cup sugar, 1-2 cup water, 1-2 cups crushed fresh raspberries, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup cream, whipped.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Combine sugar and water and heat until sugar is dissolved. Stir in raspberries and salt. Cool. When mixture begins to thicken, fold in whipped cream. Pour into baked pie shell or crumb crust and chill. Just before serving, garnish top with whipped cream.

Pineapple Sabayon
(Makes 1-2 cups)
Sponge cake circles, fresh berries and this well-chilled pineapple sabayon creamy sauce will produce a wonderful summer dessert.

Four egg yolks, 4 tablespoons sugar, 1 cup canned unsweetened pineapple juice, pinch of salt, 2 teaspoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon vanilla, few drops rum flavoring, if desired.

Beat egg yolks until thick and creamy. Add sugar and place in top of double boiler. Continue to beat. Add the pineapple juice, lemon juice and salt. Remove beater and stir well with a silver spoon until mixture coats the spoon like a cooked custard. Keep water in bottom of double boiler at simmering point so mixture will not curdle. Cool. Chill well before serving.

Here's a refreshing summer dessert idea from the Hawaiian Islands. Serve well-chilled pineapple sabayon, which is a creamy sauce the consistency of cooked custard, over sponge cake circles topped with fresh blackberries.

Dean Knocked Out by St. Louis Cards

Cubs Rally in Late Innings and Win by Score of 8 to 4

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Dizzy Dean's heralded pitching appearance at Sportsman's park for the first time since he changed into a Cub uniform was a flop Wednesday but his mates came from behind to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals, 8 to 4.

Five hits and a sacrifice fly by the Cardinals drove their former ace pitcher from the game before one inning had been completed. Until the seventh, it appeared as though Dean was to be charged with his first defeat of the season.

But in that inning Stanley Hack hit a home run, Billy Herman doubled and Augie Galan singled Herman home with the tying run. In the eighth Manager Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs hit his seventh homer of the season for enough margin to win. But Chicago made three more runs off Bill

Hope Wins First Game—Taylor Loses One-Hit Performance

The Bruner-Ivory Handle company softball team split a doubleheader with the Lion Oilers at Eldorado Wednesday night, Bruner winning the opener, 9 to 4, and dropping the second game, 2 to 1.

Roy Taylor lost a heart-breaker in the second contest. He held the Lion team scoreless with a one-hit performance until the final inning when two errors by his teammates accounted for the Lion's two runs and victory. Four home runs were hit in the opening contest, Percy Ramsey, Robinson and Mattison getting round trippers for the Bruner team and Grenade smacking a four-base blow for the Lions.

The Bruner team got nine hits off Phillip "Windmill" Moore in the opener. The Oilers got six off Robinson. The Bruner team made one error and the Oilers seven.

In the second contest, Roy Taylor allowed one hit, but his mates committed a total of four errors, two in the last inning which cost Bruner

McGee in the ninth. McGee, who entered the game in the eighth was the losing pitcher.

By losing, the Cardinals turned over second place in the league race to the fast-stepping New York Giants but remained two games ahead of the fourth-place Cubs.

AFTER THE BRAWL

Baseball's New Names

John Whitlow Wyatt's arm has grown stronger each year since 14 chips of bone were removed from his elbow in 1934.

The right-hander was given tractor by Milwaukee fans during Wyatt Day last season. He yielded earned run average of only 2.37, turned in nine shutouts and 26 complete games in winning 23 while losing 7 for Brewers. In Brooklyn livery, he leads National League pitchers.

Considerable persuasion was required to get Wyatt to join Milwaukee in 1938. His Georgia cotton plantation and first visit of stork were uppermost in his mind. But talked into reporting, the 29-year-old star quickly twirled way to a fourth trial in the majors.

Louis Wins From Galento in Fourth

Champion, However, Is Floored in Third Round by Challenger

NEW YORK (AP)—Joe Louis defended his world heavyweight championship by smothering Tony Galento into helplessness in four rounds at Yankee Stadium Wednesday night.

Although floored himself in the third round of this scheduled 15-rounder, after having put Galento down in the second, Louis came on with a furious assault in the fourth. Referee Arthur Donovan finally stopped the proceedings at 2:28 of that round.

He intervened as Galento fell to his knees and wrapped his arms around the referee's knees, his face beaten to a pulp, blood streaming from eyes and mouth.

While it lasted, it was one of the toughest battles the negro champion has had since he won the title from Jim Braddock two years ago. Unafraid of Louis, Galento rushed in with his left arm flailing and had Louis hanging on from two smashes to the chin in the first round.

In the second, Louis who seemed extremely cautious of Galento's portside fist in the early going, opened up momentarily, and Galento went down from a left and right, delivered as Galento charged.

But Tony turned the tables in the third, charged in, and shot a short right uppercut to the chin and a left to the mid-section which suddenly dropped Louis to the seat of his pants in midring. The champion got up and managed to stave off Galento the rest of the round, and with that, Tony's hopes ended.

At that point, Galento was within one punch of the world heavyweight championship. Had he been able to land one solid smash when Louis came up off the floor, had he been able to charge in and connect with Louis in his dazed condition, he would have won. But he just didn't have it.

So Joe came out in the fourth round and for a few seconds, they fought on even terms. Then Louis opened up. In just a moment, he had Galento back against the ropes and he smashed over left, right, left and right again to the jaw and head. Each punch seemed to open a new stream of blood from Tony's face.

Momentarily, referee Donovan separated them, but forward again charged the champion. This time he backed Galento against the ropes on another side of the ring, but still near Tony's corner. Joe pumped both fists into Tony's face and this assault proved too much for the game Galento, who weighed 233½ to Joe's 200½.

Galento staggered out of the milling, reeled about five steps, half-blinded and bleeding, and finally slumped to his knees, making a vain effort to keep himself upright by wrapping his stubby arms around Donovan. He was completely done in.

Despite the beating he absorbed, Tony only took time to get back to his dressing room before shouting for a return match.

"If they (his handlers) had let me fight my own fight I never would have been cut," he roared, but his roar was somewhat weaker than a "Well moider dat bum" with which he had shouted his defiance of Louis during his training period.

"I want a return fight in September," he added. "I'll get him."

His most serious injury appeared to be a cut above the left eye, but there was also a cut on his mouth.

Louis, hardly, had his hair mussed, but he was respectful of Tony's punching.

"Dat white boy hits like hell," he said in his dressing room. "But I'll tell you, he hurt me more in the first round than when he floored me in the third. It was one of the toughest fights I've ever had."

And Louis wasn't kidding. Those two left hand shots he took on the "button" as he backed into a new "Well corner in the first session were probably as murderous as any he has ever absorbed, not excluding the right hand blows with which Max Schmeling knocked him out three years ago, nor the right with which Braddock floored him a year later.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The world champion New York Yankees hit 13 home runs Wednesday to swamp the Philadelphia Athletics, 23 to 2 and 10 to 0, in a doubleheader.

Eight of the Yankees' homers came in the first game, breaking the mark of seven which had stood since 1886 with only a few ties. The five homers in the second game broke the major league record for the most homers in two consecutive games which the Yankees of 1936 had set at 11.

The champions made 53 total bases on their 27 hits in the first game to break their own American League mark of 50 set in 1932 but fell two short of the National League high set by Cincinnati in 1893. Held hitless in the last two innings, the Yankees barely missed several other records.

The bombardment overshadowed the pitching feats of Monte Pearson and Lefty Gomez. The former scattered seven safeties in the first game while Gomez was at his peak in the three-hit shut-out second game in which he gave only one base on balls.

The home run barrage was led by Babe Dahlgren, Joe DiMaggio and Joe Gordon with three apiece while Bill Dickey, George Selkirk, Tommy Henrich and Frank Crosetti got one each.

Washington Daybook By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Heaps of tax experts around here were ready to dispute the statement of the President that broadening the tax base would not raise the amount of new revenue expected by its advocates.

At his press conference the President said the cost of collecting income tax from a wider range of citizens would almost eat up the revenue, although he favored it as a means of making the public aware of its responsibilities.

Tax experts said that reducing the exemptions would raise more money without any appreciable cost. A married man with an income upon which he pays only $3 or $4 now would have to pay $30 to $40, they pointed out, if the personal reductions were reduced from $2,500 to, say $1,500.

But nobody needs to sweat much about that for two years. The President is not pressing for it this year and Congress won't press for it next year—not with elections coming on.

Now, About These Italians
You might like to know that Army folks are revising early impressions about the fighting ability of Italians. When the Italians were routed in a panic at Guadalajara in the Spanish civil war a hasty impression grew up that Mussolini's legions could not fight. Since then, critics have received more facts.

The Italian troops batten at Guadalajara were mostly conscripts from here and there about Italy, incompletely trained and not long enough in uniform to develop discipline or morale. And they were commanded by second string Italian officers who didn't know how to coordinate their attack with the air service. Such a combination would promise failure eight times out of ten. They suspect Mussolini has some better troops.

However, most officers here seem to believe that two crack divisions of French troops could have driven the entire Italian contingent into the Mediterranean in a week's campaign.

Odds and Ends
A State Department reporter, evidently by mistake, received a letter from a collection agency informing him that he owed $5 to a certain Washington physician.

"If you do not pay this account within 24 hours," the letter said, "we shall take steps which will amaze you."

Bolling hot, the reporter replied—on State Department stationery just for the devil of it.

"I don't know Dr. Blenko. I don't owe Dr. Blenko. And if I get another insulting letter like this I will take steps that will amaze YOU." There has been no reply.

If it will give you any satisfaction to rub shoulders with an admiral, go into the Navy cafeteria, which is open to the public. You will find many admirals pushing their own trays through a cafeteria line, picking up soup, crackers, butter, bottles of milk and pork chops without asking any right of way over clerks or lesser seamen. Their only distinction is that after 1 p. m.

Rifon may be interested to know that Army's new Grand anti-aircraft can be fired so fast that it will not enough to explode cartridges the chamber without pulling the trigger. However, the Army doesn't consider it a serious defect, even though it might excite a rookie to have a shot loose while the enemy is getting ready to charge, the gun can be coolly leaving the breech open.

WASHINGTON—President and Mrs. Roosevelt have reduced gift giving to comfortable simplicity. To visiting foreign dignitaries and other notable guests, they present copies of the Roosevelt writings or autographed photographs.

From diplomatic standpoint it leaves the State Department at ease, as no foreign or notable, be he great or small, can feel that he was shabbily treated since all the gifts are strictly personal, valued chiefly because they were given by the President and his wife.

The President gave King George a set of his public papers bound in blue Morocco engraved with his own insignia and that of the king. Mrs. Roosevelt gave the queen a copy of her book, "This is my story," also done in blue Morocco, and they exchanged photographs, mounted in silver frames.

The King's gift to President Roosevelt was a gold ink well. It becomes a historic relic and probably will be placed in the "Museum" on the ground floor of the White House where numerous other gifts to the President are collected.

The President's public papers bound in black Morocco were given Crown Prince Frederik and Crown Princess Ingrid of Denmark and Crown Marika of Norway. To them also went Mrs.

Roosevelt's book and the Roosevelt photographs.

Occasionally President Roosevelt gives copies of one of his two other books, "On Our Way," and "Looking Forward."

Speeches as Gifts
To South American countries the President visited in 1936 on his trip to the Inter-American conference in Buenos Aires he presented copies of the three speeches he delivered on that journey. They were handsomely printed and bound by the Government printing office, the three speeches appearing in French, English, Spanish and Portuguese.

To President Somoza and Mrs. Somoza of Nicaragua the President and Mrs. Roosevelt gave autographed photographs in silver frames on their recent visit.

While the President's gifts are fairly uniform, the presents he receives range from things of extreme beauty and value to just plain gadgets. The "Museum" in the White House already is crammed with them, all carefully tended and watched over by White House Police.

In a case with other selected items is the gold handled dagger given the President by the Sultan of Muscat on his visit here last year. It is a wicked looking blade with a hasty oriental curve as if designed to slide your under your ribs and come out under your left ear.

Also in the museum is a Japanese vase, its deep red glow almost hiding sub-surface decorations. Beside it is a desk lamp in the shape of a pump. Pump the handle and the light turns on. Massachusetts WPA workers sent it in 1938 to commemorate pumpmiring.

Most of the museum pieces are gifts of American enthusiasts, ship models, hunting knives, clocks, an intricately carved wooden church, a wooden statue of Will Rogers, birch pipes, a chair with the picture of Roosevelt reproduced in the wood. Most troublesome to the officer on guard is a wooden caricature of New York. The glasses are forever falling off. The officer has repaired them two times and they are getting wobbly again.

WHY PAY A PROFIT ON TAX?

An Open Letter to the Citizens of Arkansas

Affiliated Rice Interests of Arkansas

Citizens:

Act No. 310, enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Arkansas, known as the Consumers Sales Tax, provides for an increased tax on beer in the State of Arkansas. The following is a quotation from Section 1 of this Act:

"Said Beer Consumers Sales Tax shall be levied at the rate of three dollars and fifty cents ($3.50) per barrel of thirty-two (32) gallons, (and proportionately for larger and smaller quantities) and shall be collected by the wholesaler from the retailer, who in turn shall pass said tax to the consumer, if the retailer elects, by an increase in the retail price of beer of no more than one cent per bottle or glass of approximately twelve ounces."

In other words, the additional tax on beer is one cent per bottle. Therefore, you can still buy a 10c bottle of beer for 10c plus 1c tax for a total of 11c—or, a 15c bottle of beer for 15c plus 1c tax for a total of 16c.

We bring this to your attention because records show that a substantial increase in the cost of beer to consumers sharply decreases the total consumption of beer.

Therefore, should prices be increased more than the 1c tax, the amount of rice grown in Arkansas and used at present in the brewing of beer sold in Arkansas, will be materially curtailed.

In addition, such a reduction in beer consumption will defeat the purpose of this Consumers Sales Tax, namely, to produce more revenue for the State of Arkansas.

Federal revenue will likewise be decreased.

We ask, therefore, that the retailers of Arkansas co-operate to protect the Rice Growers and thus protect an important home industry by living up to the spirit of this act which provides for an increase in price of only the 1c additional tax.

Such an action on the part of Arkansas retailers will, in turn, protect their customers by permitting them to continue to buy beer at a price that is within reach of their pocketbooks.

Resigned L. S. U. Prexy Missing

Search is on near Baton Rouge, La., for Dr. James Monroe Smith, above, who resigned as president of Louisiana State University, disappeared few hours before Gov. Richard Leche announced "several hundred thousand dollar" shortage in school's funds.

"Agin Grafters"

Louisiana. Earl Long has a lot of "skunks" to skin, and today he has the knife to do the job if he wants to. For a long time, now, a lot of "the boys" have been kicking Earl's houn-dawg around. They thought Earl was neatly sheathed in the innocuous job of lieutenant-governor, from which he would retire, his term ended May 12, 1940, and become just one more Louisiana lawyer.

And they get little consolation from the interview Earl Long gave when he first learned Governor Leche had announced he was going to resign. "I'm not governor yet, so I have no statement to make," said Lieut. Gov. Long, in the luxurious suite of Mayor Robert S. Maestri of New Orleans in the Roosevelt Hotel.

Then Governor Long was asked, "Are you going to use the weight of your office to protect grafters under fire?"

Trucks Mean Trouble
For at that very time, Louisiana was in an uproar over a WPA "investigation" into open charges of WPA graft and corruption in high places, backed by affidavits filed with the department of Frank Murphy, attorney-general of the United States, at Washing-

Bruce Catton Says

to representatives from industrial districts that have been feeling southern competition.

In addition, there is a fairly general feeling that the wage-hour law is still so new that it deserves more of a run for its money before a thorough overhauling is in order.

Represents A Democratic Split
But the Wagner act is abundantly equipped with enemies, and none of them are more determined than Congressmen Smith and Cox.

The whole fight, incidentally, illustrates the sharp cleavage that exists within the Democratic party over "advanced" New Deal legislation.

The administration possesses such a heavy party majority in the House that no anti-New Deal campaign there would have a chance—if the party were united. But it isn't.

The fact that these resolutions are being pushed by Democrats Smith and Cox, and are not being fought enthusiastically by Democratic leaders Bankhead and Rayburn, highlights the fact unmistakably.

Hostile action toward the Wagner act in the House might cause similar action in the Senate. So far, Senate New Dealers have staved off Wagner act amendment; but if such amendments had actually passed the House, the "back home" pressure on senators to follow suit would be much stronger.

And on top of that the state was rocking even more with the story and photographs published in the New Orleans States showing a Louisiana State University motor truck, identified by its license plate 49-011, delivering a load of window frames and other house building material done in the Louisiana State University carpenter shop at Baton Rouge to a new home under construction nearly 100 miles away, in a swank New Orleans suburb. The house was being built by James McLachlan, colonel on Governor Leche's staff, intimate of Governor Leche.

"Listen," said Earl Long. "When I get to be governor of Louisiana, if I catch a crook in my administration stealing a nickel, I'll crucify him if he's my own brother. You can't cover up for crooks, defend crooks, stay surrounded by crooks, and stay in public office very long. Try to defend them and cover up for them, and they'll sink you. There's been too much of that in too many high places."

"I've learned one lesson about politics from watching what happened while my brother Huey was in office."

"The deadliest politics in the world is no politics at all. Mighty few politicians ever seemed to learn that. They all want to corkscrew, sidestep, duck, and do fancy footwork. When a man never opens his mouth except to say what he means; when he never breaks a promise; when he keeps in touch with his people; and doesn't let the hangers-on and suckers-up surround him so the people can't get to him; that man has 99 per cent of the professional politicians licked from the jump, because they can't figure out anything as simple as that."

Long Dynasty Probable
Plenty of politicians in high places have been plenty mean to Earl Long for a long time. They couldn't picture such a simple thing happening as just happened in Louisiana—Governor Leche quitting under fire, and automatically making Earl Long governor until May 12, 1940, with all the power of a governor in his hands to organize further his campaign to be elected governor in 1940, and the backing of the Maestri machine in New Orleans behind him "not 100 per cent, but 200 per cent," says Mayor Maestri.

In spite of a field of other candidates, all that probably means that Earl Long will be elected governor after his 11 months of the Leche term in that office.

The prospect of a Long dynasty looms in Louisiana now. Gov. Earl Long has no children. But Russell Long, son of Huey, now at Louisiana State University and recently married at the age of 20, has announced publicly that he is educating himself and dedicating himself for public life.

In hot political campaigns on the L. S. U. campus he has shown aptitude and the old Huey Long technique. He has emerged victorious in those campaigns for undergraduate offices. He has married young and spectacularly, while yet in college, as did his father before him.

Strange physical similarities mark the Long family. In many ways Earl Long grows more and more to look like Huey Long every day, even to act like him in many a mannerism.

He has the same hot, reddish-brown eyes. He has the same tangled thatch of dark-brown hair. He has Huey's build, though not so stout as in Huey's later years. And more and more, he is using Huey's homely, telling, country-boy phrases.

PICTURES AT BEACH AND POOL

In taking pictures at the beach, remember that sunlit sand and open water are quite bright. Be careful not to overexpose.

SWIMMING pools and bathing beaches are busy places in the summer time—and wherever there is activity, there's a field for your camera.

Since you find a lot of rapid action at these places, the finer camera with fast lens and rapid shutter provides definite advantages. But if you use a trusty inexpensive box camera, you'll find plenty to occupy it, too.

Among the things to picture are beach games, water sports, dishing children at play, sand castles, shadow patterns on rippled sand, and—at the lake or the seashore—scenic views and sunsets.

The chief thing to remember, in taking pictures at the beach, is that sunlit sand and open water are extremely bright. Therefore, exposures can be shorter than when snapping pictures inland. With "chrome" type film, 1/50-second shutter speed at f.16 lens opening is sufficient for a beach scene, and 1/50 second at f.11 suffices for average shots of individuals and small groups. These, of course, are "sunny-day" exposures—on cloudy-bright days, use the next larger lens opening. With a box camera, on a sunny day, use the large lens opening for shots of individuals and groups and the small lens opening for scenic views.

For shots of fast action, the fine camera is best—but you can also get good pictures with box camera, if you are alert for momentary pauses in the action. These occur in most games or sports. Naturally, they don't happen during a dive—so with a slow camera you have to pose the diving picture. Your subject can halt on the edge of the board, in proper position to "take off"—and if he does it realistically, the picture will be about as interesting as a genuine action picture.

If you possess a finer miniature camera in the 85-millimeter or No. 828 size, by all means take a roll or two of full-color film along when you go to the beach or pool. Bright beach umbrellas, vivid costumes, blue water, and golden sand make these places ideal for full-color photography. And today, it's just about as easy to use full-color film as to take pictures in black-and-white.

We, the Women

By RUTH MILLETT

Young girls are the biggest snobs in the world. Mother and Dad ought to remember that this summer when Daughter is home from school, and tries to remake both them and the house.

To begin with, she'll want her mother to be a lady. Virtue—and no accomplishments—will not be accepted by a young girl in place of a mother's looking like a lady of leisure. She does not want her to modern either. The idea of mother and daughter being "sisters" may appeal to Mother, but not to daughter.

Of course, she'll want the family to use perfect English. A "he don't," even if it is spoken in the sacredness of the family circle, will make her blush with shame. Blame her English teacher—not her—for that.

Then, too, she will probably think that a living room looks terrible. To or it is one thing, a backdrop for herself when she has dates. And if it isn't the best backdrop possible, she'll push furniture around all summer.

"Terrible Brothers"

If she has any brothers, she is sure to think their manners are "terrible." She won't even admit they are in the same world with the boys who take her to dances, and keep her primping before the mirror.

No matter how hot it is, she won't want Dad to come to dinner in his shirt sleeves. Men don't in the mov-

3,000-Year-Old Trumpet
NEW YORK—A classical, fully developed trumpet, called a lur, which archaeologists say was blown as a summons to battle or worship in the Danish Bronze Age more than 3,000 years ago, has attracted thousands of visitors daily to the Danish Pavilion of the New York World's Fair.

NEW YORK—Newspaper men who covered the visit of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth of England to the New York World's Fair are still wondering what the King said to his consort out of the corner of his mouth while he stood at attention during the playing of the two National Anthems in the Court of Peace. There wasn't a lip reader in the hundreds of reporters and photographers on the job.
